

Château du Glana

2008 Vintage

The 2008 growing season and the ripening of the grapes that year were confronted with fairly capricious weather conditions: strong showers alternating with bright sunshine, cold spells, and hot periods! This sort of weather is unfortunately conducive to vine diseases...

However, starting in mid-September, fine weather, with cool nocturnal temperatures accompanied by a breeze, eliminated the risk of disease and provided the grapes with enough sunlight for good ripening. This was nevertheless very slow, and the first plots of Merlot were harvested on the 30th of September, and first Cabernet Sauvignon grapes on the 7th of October.

2008 will thus be remembered as a difficult and late-maturing vintage saved by a sunny autumn as well as the many efforts in the vineyard to compensate for the challenging weather.
